Dear Bettie Smith:

Your letter addressed to me in Washington has been forwarded to. I have at once gone through my photographs, all of which are too large for your purpose. Hence I send you one of my two old ones on a small scale taken by a student.

At your pleasure tell me how old you are and what things interest you most. Possibly I can send you something of interest; my own writings are too technical for your use. All the books I have written are technical.

I looked on the map and found your home city northeast of Jansville which I once visited.

All my best wishes, Bettie,
